

Summary of ECD Global Alliance Internet Chat on 15 Jun 2013

2 Attendees

- A member left a message before the Chat, telling us that they were going to a rehabilitation center for one month, next weekend. This was exciting because it would involve concentrating on physiotherapy and training, and there would be NO WORK!
- A member came on at the official start time. After 15 minutes, or so, one other member joined. It must have been good weather in the US, or there were some real good things on TV.
- One of the two Chatters said that extreme tiredness was a problem. The other Chatter did not have this, but said that 8pm was the usual bedtime!
- The tired member had to go to bed early. Tomorrow is "going to Church day", and there are some doctor's appointments coming up this week. This member has had to get a new endocrinologist, because the old one didn't like the changes in the Medicare system. The new doctor's office is just 25 miles away, but, because the appointment is an early one, the member will have to leave home at 7 am. Today, there was a necessary trip to the store. The member left while still feeling safe to drive.
- The other member stayed on-line, for another 15 minutes, waiting for something to happen, or somebody to turn up. Nothing happened, nobody turned up. Poor old Billy No Mates.
