

Summary of ECD Global Alliance Internet Chat

24 June 2017

5 Attendees

- A member said that she had seen her doctor in Lexington that week, and he had told her that he has two more possible ECD patients. He is waiting on their biopsies. She has recently had a brain MRI, which showed a "micro adenoma or lipoma or some sort of micro something oma" in the pituitary. This had not been reported on any MRI before.
- Weather was discussed with tropical storm Cindy making her way north to the US.
- In France, the beans grow fast, and will be ready to harvest in one week. The tomatoes are in flower, as well as the squash. Our member there made a cold soup with watermelon and tomatoes, which he said was nice to drink when it's so hot.
- We were reminded that Dr. Janku is leaving Houston in August. He is going to The City of Hope outside of Los Angeles.
